2. Summary of duties

We are looking to appoint a Senior Lecturer in Strategy to The Open University Business School in the Department for Strategy and Marketing. More detail about the department is given through the web links provided below.

The Senior Lecturer would be expected to participate in a range of teaching activities and should have a strong research track record and the motivation to maintain a continuing research contribution. Applications would be welcome from candidates with teaching and research experience and interests in ANY area of strategy.

With regards to teaching, the successful candidate can expect to contribute to the development of materials for undergraduate, postgraduate, and continuing professional learning and development (CPLD) modules in strategy, as well as to interdisciplinary modules on a range of qualifications as required.

You will have international research expertise within the field of strategy and a strong track record in publication together with experience of bidding for funding. You will be skilled in communicating and engaging effectively with practitioner and academic communities and have experience of external engagement. You will have experience of or potential to supervise doctoral students to completion as there will be an expectation that you will supervise doctoral candidates based in Milton Keynes.

The Open University Business School differentiates itself through a distinctive practice-based pedagogy, placing the student’s experience at the heart of learning. Our learning materials exploit a wide variety of media – including print, web, audio-visual and face-to-face, facilitated by a network of over 750 part-time Associate Lecturer (AL) colleagues. We are therefore seeking to appoint a new colleague with outstanding team-working skills, creativity and initiative, as well as excellent specialist subject knowledge who is willing and able to contribute to our undergraduate and postgraduate teaching programmes.

The successful candidate will be required to:

- Contribute to either/or both the undergraduate and MBA degrees by working on the development and presentation of one or more of our modules.
- Undertake research and publication which will enhance the research profile of the Business School.
- Bid for external research funding.
- Contribute to monitoring of the quality of tuition, assessment and online student support.
- Be responsive to multimedia developments within the OU;
- Tutor at face-to-face residential schools or their online equivalents, or other forms of direct student contact, for at least ten days per year.
- Play a full part in the academic life of the Business School, which is located on The Open University’s Walton Hall campus in Milton Keynes, including supporting other staff.
- Serve as requested on Business School, Faculty and OU committees.

The post is based at Walton Hall in Milton Keynes.

5. About the unit/department

Faculty of Business and Law

The Faculty of Business and Law is one of the four faculties of The Open University. It brings together two Schools – The Open University Business School and The Open University Law School – and has a strong reputation as a high-quality and innovative provider of management and legal education. Our courses and qualifications are studied by a wide range of people from all backgrounds – we are proud to promote opportunity and social justice by making higher education open to those unable to attend a more traditional campus-based university.

Student satisfaction is a high priority and we are determined to deliver the best outcomes for everyone studying with us. Around 35,000 students are currently enrolled on our business, management and law programmes; about quarter of them are based outside the UK in 80 countries. The majority of our students are employed and study part-time with us.

The Faculty employs around 130 academic staff, two thirds of whom are based at The Open University's Milton Keynes campus, 700 Associate Lecturers and around 80 academic-related and administrative members of staff.

We are committed to developing our staff to achieve their full potential and offer a range of formal and informal training and development opportunities to support individual and Faculty objectives.

The Open University Business School

Founded in 1983, The Open University Business School holds a unique position as the leader in flexible, accessible and high quality business and management education. We are recognised for the quality of our programmes, the excellence of our teaching and the impact of our research. The School is one of an international elite group of institutions to have triple accreditation by EQUIS, AACSB and AMBA. We are also a member of the Global Business School Network – an organisation working with top international business schools to build management education capacity in the developing world.

The School has four cross-disciplinary academic departments: Strategy and Marketing; Accounting and Finance;
People and Organisations; Public Leadership and Social Enterprise. Each department includes academics, visiting experts, research staff and postgraduate students. The result is a dynamic, collaborative approach to research and programme development that is engaged with the needs of commercial, public and third sectors in the UK and internationally.

Research within the Business School combines intellectual rigour and innovation with practical relevance. Its academics have substantial experience working jointly with organisations in all sectors of the economy and directing their findings to influence management thinking and practice. There is an active PhD programme with around 30 PhD students. Since first entering the Research Assessment Exercise (RAE) in 1996, The Open University Business School has increased its research capability significantly, with external awards from Economic and Social Research Council, Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council, Design Council, European Union, the private sector and internal sources. The 2014 Research Excellence Framework (REF) results show the high quality of the research outputs and impact of the School’s research. The School ranked 34th overall placing it in the top third of UK Business Schools. For impact, the School was placed 16th overall, indicating not only the excellence of the research but also its influence and relevance to user communities in all areas from practice to policy.

The School offers a wide range of undergraduate, postgraduate, doctoral and executive education programmes. We also make a considerable amount of learning material available for free through The Open University’s own open educational resources platform OpenLearn and popular social media such as iTunesU and YouTube, and as part of FutureLearn – an (Open University owned) international university collaboration to bring online learning to a global audience.

Further information about The Open University Business School can be found at: http://www.open.ac.uk/business-school/
