Presentation pattern  October to June

Module description
The module explores the history of Europe from 1500 to 1780 and addresses both the fundamental changes associated with the early modern period – in the structures of and mobility within the social order, changes in religious thought and practice, the arrival of new ideas associated with the Renaissance, Reformation and Enlightenment - and important continuities such as those in the organisation of work, and the continuing power of Catholic Church over many aspects of life.

Person specification
The person specification for this module should be read in conjunction with the generic person specification for an associate lecturer at The Open University.
As well as meeting all the requirements set out in the generic person specification, you should have:
• an honours (undergraduate) degree in history or in a subject containing a substantial historical component
• experience of teaching history at undergraduate level
• experience of teaching early modern European history
• an ability to guide students in finding and using historical materials online
• the ability to grade assignments and provide constructive feedback to students

It would be an advantage to have:
• a 2:1 or above undergraduate degree classification
• a postgraduate qualification in History or a postgraduate qualification with a substantial historical component
• a teaching qualification (such as a PGCE, HE Fellowship, or comparable) in history
• a commitment to keeping your skills and knowledge updated

Module related details - a full explanation can be found on the website

| Credits awarded to the student for the successful completion of a module: | 60 |
| Number of assignments submitted by the student: | 6 |
| Method of submission for assignments: | 1a |
| Level of ICT requirements: | 2 |
| Number of students likely to be in a standard group: | 20 |
| Salary band: | 7 |
| Estimated number of hours per teaching week: | 6 |