So in my role at the minute as Digiskills Cymru Project Manager, a lot of the work that I do is promoting different ways of learning online and OpenLearn is always the first port of call, when it comes to showing people the potential of learning on line and giving them a progression route into further learning. In Wales Union Learning Fund Learning we are often focused on giving people essential skills or those skills to get back into learning to increase people’s confidence. Once our work is done in that area, people are often looking for progression routes and OpenLearn is the ideal progression route for people who maybe want to take what they have learned through workplace learning into higher education and develop their skills and their career further.
